Full job description

Your new company

Join an Australian manufacturing business as their warehouse and logistics manager based in the Shire region.

Your new role

In your new role as Warehouse and Logistics Manager, you'll lead warehousing and end-to-end logistics operations, working closely with the Operations Manager and senior leadership to drive improvement throughout the logistics function of the business. Additionally, your responsibilities will include:

- Management of the logistics and warehousing team, driving improvement within processes (through LEAN, 5S etc.) and creating exceptional team culture.
- Full-cycle logistics management of freight and transport providers, driving cost-efficiency and improvement, and ensuring SLAs are met consistently to ensure customer satisfaction.
- Fostering positive relationships both with customers and external providers, managing the resolution of issues and handling complaints.

What you'll need to succeed

- Previous experience within a logistics management role, with a demonstrated history of process improvement and successful leadership of teams.
- The ability to form successful relationships with key stakeholders both internal and external through influencing and negotiation skills to form solutions in line with business objectives.
- Strong understanding of warehouse procedures and inventory control with excellent ERP/MRP systems knowledge and general high-level computer literacy.

What you'll get in return

You'll join a booming, global business in an exciting growth period, receiving a salary of $110-130K + super, gaining an autonomous role with the opportunity to make real change.

What you need to do now
